Letter in the pension folder, dated February 6, 1929, written in response to an inquiry.

I advise you that from the papers in the Revolutionary War pension claim, S.45899 it appears that Henry Loucks enlisted in Rome, New York in 1776, served as a private in Captain Swartwout's Company, Colonel Peter Gansevoort's New York Regiment was at the battle of Fort Stanwix, also in General Sullivan's Indian Expedition; was transferred to Captain George Sytez's Company, Colonel Van Schaick's New York Regiment, was at the taking of Cornwallis and was discharged June 6, 1783.

He was allowed pension on his application executed April 16, 1818, while a resident of Manheim, Herkimer County New York. In 1822, he was aged about sixty-four years and residing in Lowville, Lewis County, New York. He stated that the only members of his family then residing with him were his wife Eve aged fifty-eight years, her maiden name not given, and son David aged thirteen years.

There are no further data relative to family.

This is the history of the only soldier named Henry Loucks, or other spelling, found on the Revolutionary War records of this bureau.

End Notes—S.45899—Henry Loucks

1. Henry enlisted as a private for "during war" on March 13, 1777 in Captain Abraham Swartwout's Fourth Company in Colonel Peter Gansevoort's Third New York Continental Regiment.
2. On January 1, 1781 the Continental Army was re-organized. There were many supernumary officers in the regiments which means they had more officers than enlisted men. Many regiments were consolidated into one. Colonel Goose VanSchaick's First New York Continental Regiment was consolidated with Gansevoort's Regiment. VanSchaick being the senior colonel retained the command of the First New York. Those officers losing their commissions or were given a lower rank were said to have been "deranged".

3. Henry who was serving "during war" was transferred to Captain George Sytes' Company in Colonel VanSchaick's Regiment. FROM: Revolutionary War Rolls 1775-1783, Series M-246, Roll 66, folder 14, National Archives, Washington, D.C.
4. The Siege of Fort Schuyler alias Fort Stanwix (British name) was from August 3rd to 22nd of 1777.
5. Major General John Sullivan and Brigadier General James Clinton after joining forces marched against the Iroquois Indian Villages in the western part of New York State and destroyed the villages and their crops. One major battle was fought on August 29, 1779 at Newtown, now Elmira, New York.
6. Captain Swartwout was discharged or resigned from the regiment in May of 1778 and was not part of the Third New York after that time. Lieutenant Colonel Marinus Willett actually took command of the company.
7. The Siege of Yorktown, Virginia was from September 28 to October 19, 1781.
8. Henry is mistaken. Captain-Lieutenant Cornelius Swartwout was in Captain Andrew Moody's Company of the Second Continental Artillery Regiment. Captain Moody's Company was stationed at Fort Montgomery and Cornelius was taken prisoner on October 6, 1777 and remained a prisoner until December 17, 1780.

He was born in this State, of pious parents, and was among the earliest settlers in Stone Arabia — Being brought tip from his youth in the principles of the Christian religion, he became at an early period of his life a member of the German reformed church, and as such continued unformily a faithful an zealous supporter of it until he was called to a better home. Pew persons, both by nature and habit, led a more peaceable, sober and exemplary life — That he "wronged no one" was his ambition, and a principle to which he adhered with scrulous exactness. As a testimony of respect to the memory of the deceased, and an expression of grief for departed worth, the most numerous concourse of relatives and acquaintances ever witnessed on a similar occassion in that part of the country, attended his funeral.
